Tilton and Beecher.

HOW THEODORE BECAME ROUSED TO JEAL-OUSY AND HATRED OF BEECHER-WHAT "ELI PERKINS" SAYS.

Cor. Chicago Times.

In a talk with Henry Ward Beecher, just before I left New York, I learned how Theodore Tilton first became jealous of Mrs. Tilton's admiration for and veneration of her friend and pastor. It com-

Beecher.

From that time on Theodore Tilton had but one idea-a hatred of Beecher-a jealousy, insane and morbid, which devoured him night and day. He reasoned to himself, how can this great man find anything to admire in a weak woman like Elizabeth? There is nothing; it is lust, Then, with the wish the father to the thought he worked himself up to the morbid belief, the insane belief, that the relations between the great preacher and his wife were purely carnal. He hated morbid wish and belief, insane as it was, finally became a hobby which he brooded over, day and night, until he believed it as much as George Francis Train believed he was going to be President or Dictator.

Trials of a Life Insurance Agent.

The other day a well-dressed stranger, carrying a hand-valise, called into a lifeinsurance office and inquired if the agent was in. The agent came forward rubbing his bands, and the stranger asked:-

"Do you take life-insurance risks here?" "Yes, sir; glad to see you, sir-sit down, sir," replied the agent.

"What do you think of life-insurance, anyway?" inquired the stranger as he satdown and took off his hat.

"It's a national blessing, sir-an institution which is looked upon with sovereign favor by every enlightened man and woman in America." "That's what I've always thought," answered the man, "Does your company pay its losses promptly?" "Yes, sir-yes, sir. If you were in-

Encalyptus Trees.

Whatever be the cause or causes which render a marshy district comparatively healthy to what it was before the introduction of the encalyptus trees into the neighborhood, the fact is unquestionable, and is now testified to in various parts of the world. Thus at the Cape, in a very few years, the cultivation of the eucalyptus has completely changed the climatic condition of the unhealthy parts of that Beecher with his whole heart, and that colony; and in Algeria, where it has been tried on a large scale in a district pre- pense of the German Government. viously noted for its pestilential air and consequent prevalence of fever, not a single case now occurs, although the trees are not more than nine feet high; and in the neighborhood of Constantia it is also stated that at another noted fever spot covered with marsh water both in winter and summer, in five years the whole district was dried up by 14,000 of these trees, and the inhabitants now enjoy excellent health. In Cuba, again, marsh diseases are fast disappearing from unhealthy districts where this tree has been introduced. In the Department of the Var it is also said that a station house situated at one end of a railway viaduct, so pestilential that the officials could not keep there longer | cial progress to the opening of the Grand Opera than a year, is now as healthy as any at Paris. other place on the line, in consequence of the planting of a few encalyptus trees. Numerous other instances might be cited to the same effect as having occurred in France, Spain, Italy, Germany and other parts of the world; and we cannot doubt, therefore, that although the effects might have been to some extent probably exaggerated, the statements are substantially correct, and that this tree does possess a most beneficial effect in neutralizing and improving the malarious influence of marshy districts.

Sink or swim, An Inventor's Remarkable Career they would not throw aside the coin. As a natural result, these people often sank while wearing life-preservers. The preserver would sustain the weight of a man, even after his heavy clothes were soaking wet, but the additional weight of $500 or $1,000 in coin was too much for the average preserver, and the opulent heathen would disappear from view. In every instance where the sea afterward gave up its Chinese dead, money was found on the bodies. The strangest phase of Chinese demoralization remains to be described. The passengers of this nationality who had baggage gathered together their effects, after the fire had been raging for some time, and swinging the bamboo poles across their shoulders, deliberately marched overboard. Whether the poor wretches had any idea the water would sustain them, or timely aid was a matter of certainty, the Caucasian spectators cannot say. The Chinese went overboard, struggled in the water a moment and then disappeared, leaving the cherished baggage buffeting the waves .-S. F. Bulletin.
